Says Peacock Urged Him
to Continue Despite Efforts to Quit
TO INTERVIEW MAN
Says Curtis, $50,000 Not Connected

TRIDENTON, N. J., May 19.—Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, today declared that he was "eager" to send a representative to Norfolk, Va., to hear the story of the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, fellow negotiator of John Hughes Curtis, the shipbuilder who confessed to kidnapping the Lindbergh baby.

The governor's statement followed a statement by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, of the New Jersey state police, that there was nothing that would in any way link Curtis with the actual kidnapers and the collectors of the $50,000 ransom money paid over a cemetery wall in New York.

"I am eager to send a representative to see what the Rev. Dobson-Peacock has to say for himself," said Governor Moore. "I will talk to Colonel Schwarzkopf and we will designate a man to make the trip to Norfolk."

TRIDENTON, N. J., May 19.—The grand jury of Hunterdon county is expected to be called by Justice Thomas A. Trenchard today to return an indictment against John Hughes Curtis, who spent the night in the Flemington jail, sent there by the explosion of his bubble of lies that hoaxed Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the police authorities of the country and the whole civilized world.

Curtis went to jail late yesterday afternoon after a hearing before Justice of the Peace George Webster who held court in the garage of the Lindbergh home.

BOND $10,000
Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck asked that Curtis be held in $10,000 bail to answer to the charge of "Willfully furnishing false information to the authorities." Unable to furnish the bail the Norfolk shipbuilder, whose weird fabrications kept police and naval agencies running about on phantom chases, was turned to the county jail at Flemington.

The great public drama came when Curtis left the Lindbergh home—the home of the man he had deceived while his heart was torn—and was taken by state troopers to the county jail at Flemington.

He sat in the back seat of the official state automobile, his face almost entirely covered with a coat pulled up high around his ears and his hat pulled down low over his eyes. Observers saw, however, that his face was pallid and drawn; there were deep lines around his mouth and eyes and he appeared deeply worried.

When the car skid to a stop in front of the county jail, it had to plow its way through a crowd of several hundred persons who were waiting its arrival. There were murmurs of resentment from the crowd.

RUSHED INTO JAIL
Surrounded by state troopers in their gaudy blue and grey uniforms, Curtis was rushed into the jail. Flashlight guns exploded and the movie cameramen, ground out film showing the arrival of the man who, for nearly two months commanded the attention of the entire world.

Baring of Curtis' Cruel Hoax

Statement of John Hughes Curtis, 508 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Made by my own hand and not free will.

Referring to the two statements made previously by me in regard to the Lindbergh case:

All the present time I am under the impression that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself, due to financial troubles.

I was apparently brought back to my senses by my telephone conversation with my wife this afternoon when she told me of the troubles she was having and how the children missed me, also by my conversation with Inspector Harry W. Walsh.

I desire to state that my remarks about the newspapers are true and can be verified, this is in reference to my story about my financial and Mr. Willard of the Herald Tribune, Mr. Lee of the News and Mr. Fox and Fox, offering me money of my knowledge of the Lindbergh case or pictures of the baby.

The matter was brought to my attention during a conversation and due to what I now believe was a distorted mind by brooding over it, I became insane on the subject for the time being, which caused me to create the story in its entirety, which was untrue in every respect.

I caused Colonel Lindbergh and others any harm in my power to prevent my escape.

I am a child of the law and I am in the power of the law and I am in the power of the law.

I brought about by the realization of the story.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD IN BANK THEFT

Bridgeport, O., Officers Break Into Hotel Room;
Hold Two Akron Men

FIND NO MONEY
Descriptions Tally, Officers
Declare

BRIDGEPORT, May 19.—Deputy sheriffs broke into a room in a Bridgeport hotel today and arrested two Akron men and a Medina youth as suspects in the $25,000 robbery of the Noble County National Bank at Caldwell, O., yesterday.

Those arrested were Marshall Shue, 29, of Akron; his brother, Howard Shue, 35, Akron, and their cousin, Paul Shue, 17, of Medina.

DESCRIPTIONS TALLY

Although the three had no money when they were taken into custody, sheriff's deputies declared their descriptions tally with those of the three men who held up the Caldwell bank yesterday, binding four bank employees and seven customers with rope.

The clue that led to their arrest was a conversation they reported to have had with a garage man in Bridgeport.

Deputies said they told the garage man they had come to Bridgeport from Philadelphia over U. S. route 21.

They were linked up with the robbery because members of the posse who searched for the robbers yesterday said the bandits headed for Marietta over the highway.

When arrested at the local hotel, the men had no weapons. The three who robbed the bank were armed.

An automobile abandoned by the robbers on the outskirts of Caldwell as they were escaping from pursuers had already been identified as one which was stolen from the vicinity of Akron. Leo Hayes, Akron special officer, said two men gagged him and took his machine at 11 p. m. Tuesday.

This Akron connection added to the suspicions of county authorities here.

The automobile stolen from Akron was deserted by the robbers when they found a farmer's machine parked along a highway. They fled in the latter machine.

Police here learned that Shore had been closely associated with the Fleischer gang and it was indicated that he may be questioned in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, W. Union-st. reported to police Wednesday afternoon that the trumpet belonging to her son was taken from under a fence at Corwin-st. school while the youth was playing.

DO-X PLANS TO GO HOME

Mammoth Flying Boat Leaves
Long Island For Newfoundland; Switzerland Goal.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The immense German flying boat DO-X took off from Sand's Point, Long Island, a few minutes after 5 o'clock today for Newfoundland on the first leg of the air liner's flight back to Lake Constance, Switzerland.

Captain Ernest Neumann was in command.

Weather conditions over the Atlantic ocean will determine the time of the boat's departure from Newfoundland for the Azores, the second proposed alighting point.

The DO-X left Lake Constance for the United States in November, 1930. After a round about flight during which several delays and accidents occurred, she came down into New York harbor on August 27, 1931.

CHATHAM, Mass., May 19.—"Clear weather ahead" was the word flashed to the giant German seaplane DO-X as she roared over Chatham, on the "elbow" of Cape Cod today, enroute to Newfoundland on the first leg of her trip to Switzerland.

The huge air liner was sighted flying at a low altitude over the State Harbor academy here. She was traveling at a speed estimated at 70 miles an hour.

After shooting by the elbow of the cape, in an easterly direction, the DO-X veered to the northward and headed for Newfoundland.

Murder Theory Caused by

Asserting that he is convinced Edward Waite, 63, Kingston pool-room operator, planted various clues to make it appear his suicide was a murder executed by an unknown woman referred to in a letter left for his brother, George, Coroner Dr. C. E. Robbins of Rossco, started Thursday that he will probably return a verdict of suicide in the man's strange death.

Waite was found dead in the kitchen in the rear of his poolroom, where he made his home, by his brother early Tuesday.

NO POST MORTEM
Dr. Robbins, however, did not give his official verdict pending further investigation.

No post-mortem will be held according to Robbins who denied reports circulated to the effect that he would seek authority of Howard Goldsberry, prosecuting attorney, to follow such action.

Sheriff T. Ewing Arganbright, Coroner Robbins and Mr. Estabrook, federal fingerprint expert, questioned several persons in the village Wednesday and Thursday in an effort to learn who the woman referred to might be.

Norfolk Residents Doubt Story Related By Curtis

NORFOLK, Va., May 19.—Residents of Norfolk today simply refused to accept as the whole truth the amazing confession of John Hughes Curtis that his "negotiation" to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby were the product of a reeling imagination.

All along Curtis' two associates here, the Very Rev. Harold Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal church and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, have felt there was more to the shipbuilder's tale than he told. Today the entire populace was swept with an mesceposibly obvious wave of this belief.

Some believe the erstwhile Norfolk social dictator, who stepped jowally into the role of chief intermediary for the world famous airman in his search for a stolen son, has hidden something sinister—they don't suggest what—behind his statement the whole wretched affair was a fabrication.

RUMORS HEARD

Others hold Curtis is acting as directed at the point of a gun by gangmen with whom they believe he was dealing. Still others think the confession, police inquiry and subsequent stir constitute a blind to throw the Lindbergh kidnappers off their guard in order to further the search for the criminals.

Today, more than 48 hours after news of the Curtis confession was released, Norfolk was still in a seething uproar of excitement and expectancy. There was undeniably feeling abroad that something else was "bound to happen."

John M. Arnold, Commonwealth attorney initiated an investigation to determine whether Curtis will be prosecuted here and examined Burrage and Captain Frank K. Lackmann, skipper of the yacht Marcon on which Curtis and his associates made their mysterious cruises in search of the phantom kidnappers.

He had planned action on one of three counts, attempted extortion, false pretences, and dissemination of false information, but today said he had found nothing here in justification of such a course against the shipbuilder. He will continue his investigation, and may question the Rev. Dobson-Peacock today, but if any action at all comes it will be held up pending the outcome of work

Royalty Awaiting Stork

The entire population of Rumania is anxiously awaiting word from Vienna, Austria, where the popular Princess Ileana, only sister of King Carol, is expecting a visit from the stork. The coming of the royal baby will be the occasion of much rejoicing throughout the land as the Princess is the most beloved member of the Rumanian royal family. Princess Ileana is shown with her husband, Arch-duke Anton of Hapsburg, during their honeymoon in London last Summer.

of the New Jersey police in the case.

SEND TELEGRAM

The clergyman said he had no objection to submitting to questions but has no intention of traveling up to Trenton for that purpose. Dobson-Peacock received several communications from Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey police requesting his presence in Trenton, but did not reply to any of them until today. At that time he sent the New Jersey official the following telegram:

"Replying to your telegrams of yesterday and today requesting my presence in Hopewell I stand ready at such time as you may select to meet at Norfolk or Gov. Moore's accredited representative and will fully and freely give all information in my possession pertaining to the subject."

The Christ Episcopal church rector was plainly chagrined at Curtis' latest expression, when denounced him as a publicity seeker, violator of confidences, and manufacturer of news, but offered no reply. He was openly concerned over the effect of the charges, however, particularly with respect to their inevitable publication in England. He is an Englishman and has many friends abroad.

Admiral Burrage has played a silent role since Curtis' confession

He spent more than two hours in conference with Commonwealth Attorney Arnold.

POINT IS CLEARED

The Rev. Dobson-Peacock cleared up a controverted point as to whether he ever asked Col. Lindbergh for any money during the negotiating. He explained that he "relayed" terms outlined by Curtis to Lindbergh, but added pointedly that the terms called for no money to be actually turned over to the kidnappers unless and until the baby was returned. Acting for Curtis, he went on, he asked Col. Lindbergh to deposit $25,000 in a Norfolk bank to the joint account of the three negotiators unless the baby was returned. Lindbergh refused to meet the terms.

She Reduced 38 Pounds The Safe Way

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for 4 months and I think they are wonderful. I am 32 years old and 5 ft. 2 in. tall. I was very fat, I weighed 165 lbs. and now I weigh 127 lbs. and feel fine. I let up taking the Salts one morning I feel lazy and heavy." Mrs. Florence Loftis, Boston.

This is just one of hundreds of letters we get every month. Kruschen not only causes you to lose fat but while you are losing it you gain in health in vivaciousness you lose fat where fat is most prominent and at the same time keep stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning naturally. Any druggist in the world will sell you a jar of Kruschen for a trifling sum—take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—go light on fatty meats potatoes and sweets. But for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous. It's the little daily dose that does it.—Adv.

DO YOU INHALE?

...wonder why cigarette advertising generally avoids this question?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because when you smoke Luckies your delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

HAVE YOU HAD THE NOTION THAT WOMEN'S SHREWD BUSINESS SENSE IS CONFINED TO THE DAILY SHOPPING LIST? THEN READ WHAT FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER DISCOVERED IN OHIO.

"I'm here to speak up for the LADY DRIVERS"

"they know their groceries and their gasoline"

says FLOYD GIBBONS

Helle everybody. Shall we join the ladies? I've got a particular personal reason for joining 'em right now. When it comes to making a dollar strut its stuff in the marketplace, they sure know how to say "Stand and deliver!" Naturally when I sailed back into this well-known birthplace of Presidents and heat-tempered motor fuels to discover, reporter-wise, whether Sohio X-70 and its peppy sister Sohio Ethyl could be as good as various extremely impressive birthday demonstrations had got me to believing... naturally I wanted to hear what the ladies thought.

Lend me a minute and an ear, citizens of Sohio-land, while I tell you about it. It was an appeal to headquarters, to the great Buckeye purchasing department. The logical first step in finding out if our heat-tempered Sohio gasolines were living up to promise under the test of a year's actual grind on the road.

The testers of heat-tempered gasolines—all of them that I've seen and listened to—came through smiling. The Ohio girls said things like this: "Heat-tempered gas doesn't cost any more than plain gas, but it's so much better than the rest!" And this: "The red, white and blue on Sohio pumps means freedom from repair bills." And this: "Quick pick-up, zip, pep, get-you-there-fast and get-you-back-safe—that's what I try when I buy Heat-tempered Sohio!"

And it's not guessing, and it's not... The ladies—bless 'em!—they know their Sohio just as well as they know their vegetables. I heard one say: "I'll always try any new thing that sounds as if it'd be kind to the budget. Heat-tempered Sohio certainly does produce extra and livelier miles to the gallon. One solid year of day-after-day driving in all kinds of weather on all sorts of roads has proved it to me beyond the last shadow of a doubt. I don't 'shop' for gas any longer! The Sohio pump is my pump, every time!"

To me, all this means a whole lot. They're skeptical by nature and training, these women folks. Husbands can pull that line about sitting up with the sick friend, and they'll register starry-eyed attention. But they know!

And when the ladies tell me, straight from the budget out, that good old Heat-tempered Sohio does exactly what the little old Standard Oil Company of Ohio says it ought to do—well, case closed!

So's this report. I was going to tell you about a swell Sohio ride I had the other day here in Sohio-land behind heat-tempered Sohio—a thriller. But it looks like I'm crowding my own signature out this minute. So—next time.

Ability to Pay Taxes

BOTH in and out of official circles there are persons who talk and act as though the rise of the national debt to the high 1926 level of $19,000,000,000 has no bearing on various schemes for further increasing it. In a number of quarters it is seriously advocated that congress and the administration cease worrying over economy and new taxes and fill in the widening gap between income and outgo with new government loans.

This is looking at the future through rose-colored glasses. It would be the easiest way, beset with fewer political complications, and even economically sound if there was any guarantee that governmental costs would drop and public revenue would increase sufficiently next year to balance the budget. But to set upon such a presumption would be the height of folly.

Congress might also safely decide upon a policy of balancing the budget by bonds if the nation could pyramid loan upon loan without impairing the national credit. In this respect governments are no different from any other corporation.

Facts congress and the administration must not lose sight of are that while the national debt is as high and government costs are higher than in 1926 the taxpayers are less able to carry these burdens than they were six years ago.

There are limits to the ability of the people to pay, to the national credit, to the indebtedness the country can repay, but there is no limit to which an economy program cannot go. While curtailing expenses may seem difficult to spendthrift politicians, if they do not cut costs they will find it much harder to collect the money with which to pay them.

Japan's Defeat

TOKIO apologetically explains her evacuation of the Shanghai area as a move "to conform to world-wide opinion and to end the world-wide odium which has fallen upon us."

That is a good story and the Japanese ought to stick to it. But the outside world has a sneaking suspicion that the failure of the Shanghai expedition had something to do with the evacuation decision.
 The invasion of China was ill-starred. It was a colossal blunder.
 Even though the area could have been subdued without heavy casualties and prolonged fighting, it would have been costly to Japan to leave China. Her interests in Manchuria are greater and her military forces none too large to keep the situation there under control. She may have discovered that the bite was too big to chew.

It is possible the Japs are not sincere in their protestations of acquiescence to the protocol of peace among the nations and that they bow to world opinion, but it is something to be said to the credit of both that they have served as good excuses for not making war. It matters little how peace treaties and pacts work just as long as they end wars and preserve peace, only by providing the necessary excuse.

Japan would have the world think she has humbled herself to world opinion. The fact is she has sought to escape the stigma of defeat.

Magnus Runs Again

MINNESOTA Johnson is in again.
 Minnesota's failure to resist itself for reappointment of membership in the lower branch of congress has brought Johnson out of his seclusion as one of the candidates at-large for the house.

A decade ago Johnson was much in the limelight but his star fell as rapidly as it ascended. In July, he was elected to congress to serve out the vacancy created by the death of Knute Nelson and arrived at Washington well advertised as a dirt-farmer politician with a fog-horn voice and a solemn vow to keep things stirred up in the national capital until his constituents had satiated their appetites for appropriations, patronage and laws.

For a time Magnus received some publicity and attention by virtue of his making contests, senatorial voice heard above the roar of a freight train and general noise making. But public curiosity in him soon waned and a year later his constituents, apparently unsatisfied, dropped him for Senator Schall.

Now was the banquet Johnson as fortunate or influential as Frank B. Keating, who, after being defeated by Henrik Shipstead for the senate by a majority of 25,000 in 1928, was made secretary of state and won immortality as the author of the first pact outlawing war.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, becomes engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy sports promoter, who is much older. Later, Mary meets young Steve Moore, Landers' ward.
 They are attracted to one another immediately. Landers asks Steve to entertain Mary while he is out of town. The bond between the young couple grows but thoughts of Landers form a barrier. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers. One evening Steve takes Mary in his arms. Then, conscience stricken, he tells her she must not see each other again. Next day, Landers' former sweetheart calls on Mary and threatens her.
 Mary longs for Steve but days pass with no word from him. Finally he comes to say he is going west. He persuades her to stay. They spend the evening together at Landers' hotel. Just as they exchange fervid love vows, Landers walks in.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"I'll give you back your ring, Mr. Landers—" Mary said eagerly. "But you mustn't feel as if Steve was a criminal—"
 "I thought I might depend on you for gratitude—if nothing else!" the older man threw at her.
 "What you don't seem to understand is that you belong to me. I found you and you can't give me the air as easy as all this. You'll come back into line all right. I see, though, you can't be given a loose rein."

Once more he turned to Steve.
 His voice was rigid:
 "Are you willing to drop all this right now?"

"I am not!"
 Landers threw the dead stump of his cigar out the window.

"All right—you've set the pace.
 You double-crossed me—the best friend you ever had. I offered you a chance to straighten up and you refused. Everything looks hotsy-tosy to you now but you're dumb.
 You're going up against a better man than you ever met in your life.
 You can't get away with this. I got a dozen ways of stopping you, whenever I want. Now get this. You'd better lay off Mary, or something pretty bad is going to happen to you.
 Something that will make you as gentle and easy to handle as a kitten. You're in a big, tough town now, and it's nothing like college.
 I'm telling you—I'm warning you.
 You're not going to have a chance to enjoy Mary. Better men than you have been framed and, by heaven, they will be again!"

Mary's pulse was beating wildly; she saw that Steve's face had turned pale. Landers was like ice, absolutely sure of himself. He was as authoritative as a judge pronouncing sentence upon a criminal.
 A wild terror surged in her heart.
 "... this was danger, danger! He was going to do something dreadful to Steve, he was going to hurt him
 ... to kill him ..."

"Please! Listen!" She took a few steps towards Landers. "You're upset, Mr. Landers. We haven't harmed you, either of us. Steve has practically worshipped the ground you've walked on. He still does ..."

"A lot he shows it," Landers retorted. "A lucky thing for him I got tipped off you two were in this room.
 And lucky for you I'm not going to get rough with you for disorderly conduct. I could slap you both in jail. What do you think of that?"

Mary dropped on the sofa, buried her face into her hands.

Landers left Steve and Mary in the room. He simply strode out.

and closed the door behind him.
 Alone, they faced each other, shaken and disturbed. Humiliation, a tingling sense of shame, burned in Mary's face. Steve was white, his nerves taut.

So far as Mary was concerned, all her connections with Buck Landers were ended—even her position as secretary to the manager of the hotel. But that was not even a minor worry. She could always find employment. Her heart went out to Steve, though. His future with Landers was blasted; he had thrown it away gladly for her.
 What gripped her heart with a cold terror, was the bloodless threat Landers had made against the youth she loved. Not yet could her mind absorb the deadly menace, but, deeper than thought, was an instinct of fear for the safety of the loved one. It was precisely as though an actual chill centered in her breast, as was pumping a cold current through her veins.

"We must get out of here," she said suddenly.

"Yes, we're through here," he responded grimly.

Something caught at her heart with an infinite pain of tenderness.
 She wanted to hold him with his head on her breast as though he were a child—her child, that had been hurt.

"It isn't your fault—not a bit of it," she told him valiantly. "He acted horribly. And about the money and all—don't you worry for a minute about that, Steve. We don't need anybody's money."

He squeezed her hand. "I'm not worried about that. I got you into a dirty mess, Mary—it was a rotten thing to do. Come on, we'll get out of here."

They went down on the elevator, their spirits tarnished. She wondered if he realized that Buck Landers was a dangerous man.
 Those threats ...

"Steve, I'm afraid."
 His gray eyes were steady. "No, you're not afraid, Mary." He smiled. "What is it they say on Broadway? 'Smile and keep the show on.'"

She was not calm, but tried to seem so. "Well, he's not going to panic us, thank heaven," she declared, giving him a little hand squeeze.

If anything happened to Steve she would want to die. It was curious, too, how all of the bewildering thrills of physical love-making had scattered and disappeared. Thrills were only surface things. Something deep and perfect—as pure as gold—was in her heart for Steve.
 It had nothing to do with kissing.

"Steve, you've got to get out of town."

"Don't be foolish, Mary!"

"You don't realize how serious this is." They drew aside from the revolving door and lingered momentarily near the entrance of the lounge, off the lobby. "I don't think you realize how tough these people are—people like Mr. Landers. He has men around him that actually are thugs. Gamblers and bad men.
 Another thing, he said he'd hurt you. When he talks that way I think he means it. You know the papers are always filled up with these gang murders and—"

"Oh, that's nonsense! Buck wouldn't go that far—"

"I tell you, you don't realize—" she began; and then, looking at him with desperate entreaty, "Won't you please listen to my advice, Steve? You're just a little boy—"

It was a mistake to try to influence him this way. He seemed to lean backward slightly; his face darkened with a kind of resolute stubbornness.

"We'll never get anywhere if we try to govern our conduct by your fears," he told her firmly. "I'm not used to this rough talk of Landers' and neither are you—that's why it seems so dangerous.
 He's not going to stand between us—remember that. I don't think there will be any trouble. He was angry and we were the cause of it.
 But nobody is going to bluff us, or run us out of town." Nevertheless, a sudden genuine worry crossed his expression. "The only thing is—as long as nothing can harm you. As long as you're all right, I can look out for myself."

"But if you would only get out of the hotel, Steve."

He nodded. "That's right. I'm through letting Buck pay my bills.
 It's early yet, and I think I'll go up and pack my stuff right now.
 You wait here and I'll be down presently, and have a bell boy check the stuff until I decide where to go."

"But don't be long, dear."

"I'll take about twenty minutes."

She found a chair in a shaded corner and, while she waited, her mind went back over their affection since the first meeting—her first impression of him had been that he was lively and humorous—the odd things he said—and the amusing turns of his speech. She could almost remember every word he had uttered to her; but, more vivid than conversation, she saw that they had been touched, from the beginning, with some strange, golden haze that had grown steadily brighter.

And now it was love.

But it was dangerous love—there was more to Buck Landers' threat than empty words. No man of his powerful will and cold-blooded pride was going to swallow humiliation from a stripling like Steve. Maybe Landers didn't love her—but he wanted her ...

"If you don't mind," said an unexpected voice, "I got some more things to say to you, Mary."

She looked up. Landers, sullen but collected, was staring down at her. "I'm terribly disappointed in you, Mary," he went on, seating himself. "You didn't give me a square break, and that puts our whole relationship on a difficult basis. Still, if that's the way you play the game, I'm going to play right along with you. Maybe I had too high an opinion of you—that's why I don't blame you as much as I might. You're not a fool, Mary—and I think you're going to listen to reason. You seem to be stuck on Steve right now. I'm sure you wouldn't want something awful to happen to him, would you?"

She stood up abruptly, beginning to tremble all over.

"If anything happens to Steve it would kill me," she cried desperately.

He looked at her with hard, remorseless eyes. "As bad as that, eh? Well, it's up to you, my girl.
 Come on up with me to my apartment, and we'll talk this thing out to the end. We'll put all the cards on the table. Don't think this affair is settled just because you and Steve want it to be. I haven't said the last word yet, and if you value Steve, you'll listen to me. If you don't—well, you can blame yourself for whatever happens."

Her heart almost stopped beating.

Variety of Symptoms Mark Gland Diseases

Enlargement of Thyroid Gland Causes Goitre, While Abnormal Secretion of This Gland Is Responsible for a Number of Maladies

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

GOITRE is the general name applied to all enlargements of the thyroid gland. There are several varieties grouped under this heading and they have various widely different symptoms.

Young girls at the very beginning of adolescence often show marked enlargement of the neck. This condition is most frequent in the delicate and undernourished, and especially common when the person has been subject to anxiety and overstrain.
 This form of goitre often shows no symptoms other than the unsightly enlargement of the neck.

Dr. Copeland

While this simple goitre does not usually produce nervousness or loss of weight, a more serious form of disturbance may sometimes develop. Often goitre disappears when the patient reaches the age of about twenty-five years, particularly if the health can be improved and the environment is favorable to rest and nerve repose.

The thyroid gland secretes "thyroxin," a substance that has a powerful influence on the human body.
 When the thyroid is overactive, nervousness, loss of weight, chronic fatigue and rapidity of the pulse appear; but when the secretion is deficient, various forms of mental disturbances occur. The most extreme manifestation is found in young children, and is known as "cretinism." This latter disease is peculiar to certain parts of Switzerland and India. The normal development of the child is arrested at an early age.

 The head grows large, the body is dwarfed and misshapen, and the tongue becomes large and often pro-trudes. The afflicted child is far below normal in intelligence. The administration of thyroid gland preparations may, to a certain extent, improve the condition of the patient, although few cases ever approach a normal mentality.

Insufficient thyroid secretion may occur in adults between the ages of thirty and fifty years. The symptoms are anemias loss of strength, vague pains accompanied by a harsh dry skin, dry and brittle hair, mental torpor, and various other symptoms that may be recognized by a physician. Treatment consists of replacing the diminished secretion of the gland and other results in wonderful improvement.

"Graves disease," or "exoph-thalmic goitre," is a definite disease.
 It is quite distinct from simple goitre or from functional disturbances of the thyroid.
 In exophthalmic goitre the eyes become prominent, the heart action is increased and nervous irritability is marked. Fatigue develops after only slight exertion. The treatment for this form of goitre is surgical, because the secretion of the thyroid is not only increased in amount, but is toxic in its quality.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, May 18, 1932

Many opportunities appear today for those who are able to link initiative with imagination. The indications point to the development of vast industrial projects in many quarters. And in this age when numbers count more than ever we may expect today to mark the birth of some extensive combinations in the commercial world.

Individuals who have vision and courage should seize occasions today and endeavor to get their enterprises launched. It is not a time to hang back or to deliberate too long.

The movies come under most beneficent indications, there is promise of important developments in the way of more artistic presentations and improved musical productions. Radio programs are shown to be on the way to marked alterations in regard to vocal and instrumental effects. Television is not likely to show signs of better technique.

More interest is shown in the art of dress more emphasis is to be placed upon laces and frills. The use of perfume is seen to be increasing. More and more the signs point to an increasing use of things which appeal to the imagination.
 Crude and coarseness will no longer obtain results. Manufacturers may start today to make a more effective use of paint and decorative effects.

AT THE GRAND

Perhaps the most significant drama of the screen year makes its appearance today at the Cliftona Theatre in "Surrender," Fox Films' realistic version of Pierre Benoit's novel, "Axelle."

Here is a war picture that never gets within five hundred miles of the front, a love story between a French prisoner and a daughter of the Prussian aristocracy that rings true despite (or possibly because of) its grim setting in a rickety castle and a desolate prison camp, a tale of emotion and hope as powerful as it is restrained.

The flawless performances of Warner Baxter and Leila Hyams as the principals of a noteworthy supporting cast, headed by C. Aubrey Smith and containing Ralph Bellami, Alexander Kirkland, Bodil Rosing and other favorites, and the splendid direction of William K.
 Howard, who has built a most compelling story on this sombre foundation, serve to make "Surrender" a real achievement in film annals, and a technical as well as an artistic triumph. It is distinctly a picture to be seen.

YANKEES LEAD IN SEASON'S INITIAL WESTERN CONTESTS

NEW YORK, May 19.—The New York Yankees, who stole practically all the limelight in the first interseasonal round robin by winning all of their nine games with western invaders, come to grips with their closest rivals today when they take on the second-place Washington Senators in a double-header here.

The Senators, reeling from four straight defeats at the hands of the St. Louis Browns, are a game and a half behind the league leader.

Babe Ruth, the old master, climaxed the Yanks' gallant stand against the western invaders with a dramatic home run in the tenth inning that gave Henry Johnson a well-earned decision over Clint Brown of Cleveland, 3 to 2. Washington, humbled by St. Louis 11 to 7 yesterday, could win only half of their 10 games with the western teams. The Athletics won seven out of 11 interseasonal battles, while the Browns led the westerners with seven triumphs in 12 starts.

CUBS TOP NATIONAL

In the National league interseasonal jousts, the Cubs led the way with eight wins and four losses.

The western clubs in the National won 25 games from the east and lost 20. The eastern teams in the American league enjoyed a similar advantage, winning 23 and losing 18.

Fox, Simmons, Dykes and White hit homers yesterday as the Athletics downed Detroit, 8 to 2, Fox's four-bagger being his tenth of the year.

The Boston Red Sox ended their losing streak of six straight by taking a 13 to 10 slugfest from Chicago. J. Smead Jolley, once with the White Sox, lead the Boston attack with five straight hits.

Guy Bush hung up his fifth victory of the year as the Cubs made it three straight over the Phillies, 6 to 4. Chuck Klein smacked his seventh homer of the season with two on base.

With the aid of Berger and Worthington, who collected seven hits between them, old Tom Zachary of the Braves subdued the Cardinals, 5 to 3.

Seven runs in the seventh, featured by Bill Terry's ninth homer with two men aboard, gave the Giants a 9 to 3 decision over Cincinnati.

Lefty Clark of the Dodgers was "hot" and held Pittsburgh to four hits, winning 4 to 2.

MADER LEADS LEAGUE MEET

Local Youth Scores Neat 81 On Arlington Layout; Bexley Wins Match.

Although Circleville's high school golf team was defeated on the arlington course Wednesday afternoon, John Mader, local youth, led the field with an excellent 81 score.

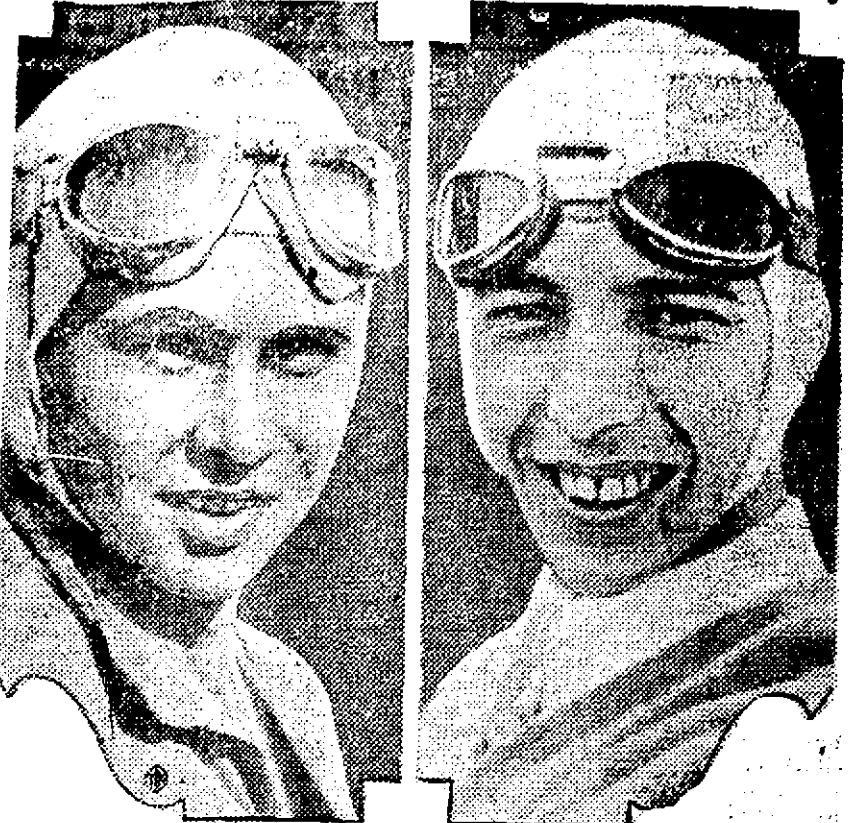

The Arlington layout is one of the toughest in Columbus.

The teams of the Central Buckeye league finished with the following total scores: Bexley 365; Grandview 366; Circleville 377; Delaware 387; Westerville 414 and Marysville 436.

Four-man teams represented each school.

The standing of the Tiger team this year is much better than a year ago when it finished in the cellar.

In Memorial Day Auto Derby

Above are two of the speed demons who will show their steel nerves and quickness of eye in the annual 500-mile automobile derby at the Indianapolis Speedway on Memorial Day, May 30th. At left is Billy Arnold, who astounded the experts in 1930 by grabbing off the honors in the classic, although he had previously been practically unknown. Right is Lou Schneider who came home in front of the parade last year.

BATTALINO TO SEEK REVENGE

Former Feather Champ Again Crawls Into Ring Against Billy Petrolle.

CHICAGO, May 19.—A mere muscle flexing was on the program of Billy Petrolle and Bat Battalino today as they tapered off training for their 10-round battle here tomorrow night.

Battalino hasn't forgotten the smashing right uppercut delivered by the Fargo Express in New York two months ago and there is as much blood in his eye as covered his body when Gunboat Smith stopped that battle in the twelfth and last round.

"The block signals are set for the Fargo Express tomorrow night," Bat declared today.

But Billy indicated that the old train would be going right along at top speed.

Both indicated they intended to fight the same kind of a battle tomorrow night that they fought in New York—except that Bat intends to keep his nose protected. Billy expects to weight 138 pounds ring-side to Bat's 135.

Strategy? Not unless swinging from the first bell until somebody drops is strategy.

Science? If wading in at top speed to beat the other fellow to the punch is science.

Courage? That's it. Two boys with fighting hearts, each with a poke of dynamite in both mitts.

Each believes he packs the hardest wallop and is willing to take two or a half-dozen on the button to land one.

FIREMAN NEEDED

To help prevent fires in your homes and factories. Everyone can be a FIREMAN by preventing fires before they start. Every home, shop and factory has fire hazards that should be eliminated. Do not wait! Do it now! Clean yards, front and rear, cellars, attics and barns. Have the rubbish hauled to the dump where it can do no harm or cause no fires.

Do you know that the fires in Circleville have increased three (3) times over last year at this time? Why is this? Also the loss is more already this year to date than all of last year.

Let every one do their part and help cut the number of fires here in the city. Less fires means lower insurance rates.

CURTIS BLAMES

And Curtis, the man who dominated the search for the kidnapers, went to a lonely cell—to spend the night with known criminals.

It was learned that when Curtis was arraigned in the Lindbergh home—the home of the man who was his host and who had befriended him—Colonel Lindbergh himself frequently appeared at the examination.

Colonel Lindbergh did not testify against him, but several times opened the door connecting his home with the garage, and looked in while the legal proceedings were going on.

There was an unverified report that the famous Lone Eagle would ask that leniency be granted the man who had tricked him.

There was no way of reaching Colonel Lindbergh for comment on this report, but friends of his pointed out that he is not vindictive and that he believed, from the files' attitude, that he would make such a request because of Curtis' family. They pointed out that there was a certain amount of sentiment behind this—Colonel Lindbergh has been a father and will be again in a few months.

TALKED AGAIN

Just before Curtis was arraigned he made a final statement to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, chief of the New Jersey state police, in which he bitterly attacked Dean Dobson-Peacock, one of his colleagues in the "Negotiations," as a publicity seeker, who gave out many statements which were not founded on either the truth or what Curtis had told him to be the truth.

His statement, and amplification of his confession on Monday, told of how he had conceived the idea of appointing himself a mediator between Colonel Lindbergh and the kidnapers of his child. He told of enlisting the support of Dean Dobson-Peacock and of their fruitless efforts to get in touch with Col. Lindbergh or Mrs. Morrow by telephone.

Even Dean Peacock's efforts resulted only in a talk with Morris Rosner who said on the telephone that he was Col. Lindbergh's private secretary. Rosner apparently doubted that Dean and Curtis had really made contact with the kidnapers told them to send him a picture of the baby and that when that was delivered further negotiations would follow.

It was then that Curtis recalled that Admiral Guy Burrage knew Col. Lindbergh and he suggested to Dean Dobson-Peacock that the Admiral be asked to join them. The Dean, according to Curtis, received the suggestion with a decided lack of enthusiasm saying that Burrage would be no help as "you know what kind of an old fogey he is."

However, when telephone conversations with the Lindbergh home proved ineffectual and when no reply was received to letters
